

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

The present invention is a portable device and system for remotely accessing a computer from a distant location and includes a keyboard processing unit having a keyboard processor with an ASCII encoder and decoder for receiving and transmitting ASCII data, a keyboard, an input output terminal and a modem for connecting the keyboard processor to a wireless telephone communicating device such as a cell phone to permit a wireless telephone interconnection to be made between the terminal keyboard processing unit and a modem in the remotely located computer and preferably, but optionally, includes an RF modulator and an RF transmitter for permitting wireless transmission to a TV video monitor for displaying and/or editing data files stored in the remotely located computer or for creating new files or is connected to another video monitor .